

Hello!

I'm Matthew Warzel, CPRW, your professional resume writer.

With over 15 years of resume writing, I trust my process and believe in my command for the written word. There is a science behind writing resumes, so why gamble your livelihood and opportunity for more long-term income on a resume that will not gain you traction? I wouldn't trust myself with changing my car's engine because of the thousands at stake. Why would you put your career at stake if you do not have the first clue about writing a resume?

My purpose

You landing more high-quality interviews

Let's do this!

Keep calm and stay committed

It's not a waste of money to invest in yourself. Unless you are capable of writing the resume that adheres to ATS best practices, has bottom-line impactful content and proper sections to best convey your message, you may need help.

There's a science behind the writing

We'll use relevant action verbs, quantifying, metric-based P-A-R statements that show you impacted the bottom-line and maintain brevity to personalize and show your story to all readers from recruiters to hiring managers. Let's not crinkle the decision-maker's foreheads when they read about you.

What is my writing style?

As a trained copywriter possessing a solid command of the written English language, Matt offers unique resume writing, related to your specific field, which sells your skills and talents. He has advanced writing skills and know how to create a resume that really speaks to a prospective employer, putting you ahead of all the other candidates.
